30th Anniversary

El Inter Americano DC-7

A short account of Panagra's 30 long years in South America

• On September 13, 1928, when a 4-passenger, single-engine Fairchild took off from a race track in Lima, Peru, and landed in a soccer field in Talara—600 miles away—a dream became a reality. A young flyer dusting cotton in Peru, had seen the possibilities for an airline and enlisted the aid of W. R. Grace & Co. and Pan American World Airways.

This historic flight was the first of a multitude of firsts for Panagra. New air trails demanded airports, weather and radio stations, maintenance shops. The airline built them. New air trails demanded larger and more powerful planes. The airline bought them and trained the personnel.

Today, Panagra DC-7s link New York and Buenos Aires in less than 23 hours. By 1960, with Douglas Jet DC-8s, Panagra expects to cut this time by more than half. Imagine, you'll be able to fly from New York to Buenos Aires in only 11 hours.
