USE Air Travel Wisely

As a means of saving time for increased war effort, air transportation is a facility which must be used wisely for the greatest national good. Air travelers can help increase the value of available air transport service by doing several things.

Whenever possible, travel during the early part of the week . . . Make reservations as far ahead as possible . . . Notify airlines regarding cancellations as soon as possible . . . Don't be a "No-Show" . . . Map itineraries to include stops on the going as well as the returning portion . . . You may save yourself an extra trip and make a seat available to another traveler whose work is important to the war program.
