The Largest Privately Owned and Operated Airway (Radio Navigation Network) in the U. S.

Assures Reliable "On-Time" Airline Service to Every Airport in the Wisconsin Central System.

Wisconsin Central Airlines operates the longest privately-owned airway (radio navigation network) in this country. (1988 miles — a distance greater than from New York to Denver). By means of this modern navigational facility, with its dependable guiding radio signals, planes can fly, with complete safety in adverse weather conditions which would ordinarily ground the planes. Complimenting the navigational facilities is Wisconsin Central's new VHF (static-free radio) communication system which provides constant ground-to-plane radio communication. Wisconsin Central is the first scheduled airline in this country to use the new VHF radio communication system exclusively.

Wisconsin Central's private system represents an investment of approximately $150,000.00. It is part of the facilities maintained by Wisconsin Central in the interest of the most dependable "on-time" airline service.
