THE QUICKEST WAY TO GET AWAY FROM WINTER

FLY to the SOUTHLAND
by AMERICAN AIRWAYS, Inc.

At San Antonio, the historic Alamo of Davy Crockett fame

Palm trees and warm Gulf waters meet on the beach at Galveston

A street market at Juarez, Mexico, across the Rio Grande from El Paso

What can be said that hasn't been said of New Orleans' Mardi Gras?

WHEN you flee from the rigors of winter, do a good job of fleeing. Fly American Airways, Inc.—to one of the glamorous resorts of the South and Southwest that offer refuge from snow and ice.

There's old New Orleans—warm, colorful New Orleans, with its history and its beauty . . . and its carnival gaiety, culminating in Mardi Gras, the day before Lent. There's Mobile, on historic Mobile Bay . . . or Galveston, the "Atlantic City of the Southwest," with its beaches and famous sea wall.

Seekers after glamor have called beautiful old San Antonio one of the few really "different" cities in the United States. And at the lower end of the Rio Grande valley there's Brownsville, on the Mexican border—a progressive city with yet a piquant foreign atmosphere. Brownsville is today the gateway to South America; there American Airways connects with the Pan American Airways service to Mexico and the southern hemisphere.

El Paso is another place to spend a happy winter. It's an interesting city itself . . . and the International Bridge delivers you into Juarez, another world, with another way of living, eating and sipping.

Steadily more popular are the resorts and dude ranches near Tucson and Phoenix, offering a winter of romance, action, adventure, rest, in the clean, dry air of southern Arizona. And while we're at it, why not Los Angeles itself . . . or San Diego, with its ready access to Agua Caliente!

Turn to the next page and see the coverage of American Airways, Inc., in relation to the places mentioned. It's the quickest way to get away from winter!
