BEHIND THE SCENES
WITH DELTA

CIRCLE: Cutaway view of one of Delta's luxurious all-metal Lockheed Electras showing passengers' cabin, pilots' compartment and cargo space.

TOP LEFT: Radio control desk. To maintain constant communication by voice with airliners and to provide a high speed inter-city reservation service, Delta has installed a chain of powerful radio telephone and telegraph stations across the entire Trans-Southern Route.

TOP RIGHT: A Magnaflux inspection unit—one of the latest developments in airline maintenance equipment. These electrical units are able to detect flaws or cracks which are hidden as much as one-half inch below the surface of metal parts.

BOTTOM LEFT: In the instrument laboratory, all flight instruments are periodically disassembled and subjected to microscopic inspection. Certain parts which are worn as little as one ten-thousandth of an inch must be discarded and replaced.

BOTTOM RIGHT: In the weather bureau. At all terminals, skilled meteorologists check atmospheric conditions twenty-four hours each day. Prior to flight departure time, all pilots are required to make a careful study of weather conditions along, and adjacent to, the course to be flown. Enroute they are kept advised of any changes by radio telephone.
