Today Military airpower is bursting through the hampering web of traditional thinking as war-born achievements sketch the tremendous pattern of the future. National Airlines today is aware of this pattern and even while energetically serving the war effort is planning to serve equally well in the bright new world of tomorrow.

Tomorrow National Airlines will apply the lessons learned from war to the furtherance of human progress . . . annihilating space with the swift wings of giant, multi-motored passenger and cargo planes . . . bringing the blessings of air transportation to regions hitherto without it . . . creating shining opportunities for men who are now fighting for their country and who will, inevitably, never again be willing slaves to time and distance.
