Boston-Maine AIRWAYS Central Vermont

"TAILOR MADE FOR YOU"

Before you've left home, the Captain and First Officer have completed a flight plan. This form, prepared and studied by experts, is a carefully worked out schedule of times, altitudes, power utilization, and — as a double check, alternate courses.

Every hour — night and day — from land and sea observing stations hundreds of reports come into BOSTON-MAINE AIRWAYS Flight Control office by radio and teletype. Every six hours the U. S. Weather Bureau issues a map of weather conditions over the entire continent. Detailed forecasts are issued for each terminal and route in addition to a general forecast. This information is supplemented by reports from crews of other flights in the air at the time your flight is being planned. With this complete knowledge your flight crew selects the smoothest altitude at which to fly, the amount of power to be drawn from the engines, the exact course to be flown, and the time required for each portion of the flight. The completed flight plan must be examined by the Flight Superintendent before he approves the flight. All East and Northbound ships must fly at odd altitudes, 3000', 5000', 7000' etc. while South and Westbound ships must fly at even altitudes, 2000', 4000', 6000', to evade any close operation of ships flying in opposite directions. On every route "check points" are designated and when a flight passes over a "check" the crew reports by radio the exact time, altitude, flying conditions, and estimated arrival over the next "check" or at the next stop. All this information is tabulated by ground station operators as well as the ships in the air. At any time a flight crew may communicate by radio with any other flight or with any of the ground stations located at each station on the route.

BOSTON-MAINE AIRWAYS Lockheed Airliners cruise at three miles per minute along the boundaries of the latest type radio ranges (described as continuously signalled sound highways of the sky) which guide your flight straight to its destination.

In addition to regular two way radiophone equipment and radio range receivers BOSTON-MAINE AIRWAYS Lockheed Airliners are equipped with radio direction finding equipment with which the Captain and First Officer may take bearings on any radio stations and double check the position of the flight in a few seconds.

BOSTON-MAINE AIRWAYS Operations Staff has developed a radio compass position indicator which enables flight control offices and other ground stations to plot the position of every flight. The radio compass position indicator gives a definite check on the flight crews' calculations as well as enabling flight control offices to determine the speed, the path of a flight, and wind direction and velocity at the particular altitudes at which the flights are operating.

Precision, study, and continuous watchfulness make your trip on BOSTON-MAINE AIRWAYS comfortable and ever safe. While you relax in enjoyment 97 experts are working and watching over you.

TRUST US WITH YOUR TIME AND PLANS

BOSTON-MAINE AIRWAYS policy is to frankly inform you of flight conditions, whether flights will operate on schedule, subject to delay, or will be cancelled. You can rely on a straightforward answer when inquiring about your trip on BOSTON-MAINE AIRWAYS.

Such exemption shall apply only to articles so acquired by a returning resident who has remained beyond the territorial limits of the United States for a period of not less than thirty-eight hours. No exemption shall be allowed in any case unless the articles claimed to be exempt were purchased or otherwise acquired merely as an incident of the trip. All articles acquired abroad during the trip must be noted on the declaration made to the United States customs officer at the time the returning resident enters the United States, or to the United States customs officers in a foreign country, just before such return to the United States if an exemption on such articles is to be claimed. PASSAGE, CANCELLATION BY PASSENGERS—Passengers may receive refund for passage if cancelled three hours prior to flight.

REFUNDS—Requests for refunds on tickets should be addressed to the Treasurer, Department, Boston-Maine Airways, Inc., Boston Municipal Airport, East Boston, Mass.
